Statement of Faith

I believe in God, Jesus Christ, and the Holy Spirit, mysteriously and uniquely unified in triune essence.

I believe in a living God, wise counselor, perfect teacher, faithful friend, one loving, sovereign God, the thoughtful creator of all things whose work is infinite, always present and listening, incarnate and self-revealed through the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus Christ, eternally bonded to creation through gracious reconciliation.

I believe in Jesus Christ, compassionate companion, courageous advocate, moral innovator, fully human and fully divine, God with us, Emmanuel, modeling love for all people and creation, suffering beyond human comprehension, conquering sin and death, our assurance of eternal life, the Messiah who will come again, the one who reconciles all things to God for the gift of new life.

I believe in the Holy Spirit, constant guide, welcomed liberator, communal sender, God in and among us, breaking the old to make way for the new,
a speck of light in the darkness, calling us to participate in God's robust work, always accompanying us on the journey ahead.

I believe that humans are broken, in need of redemption and love, seeking healing in the wrong places, yet receiving redemption through God's abundant grace, freely offered, not earned or rescinded, we respond with gratitude through faith and action, binding us together in community to serve the world with justice, peace, and love.

I believe that Word, water, bread, and wine unite us, the illuminating stories in our sacred scriptures, our field guide to the wilderness, the rule of faith and life, the nurturing waters of Baptism, its gift of a new life in Christ, the sustaining bread and wine of the Lord's Supper, carefully prepared and set on a communal table, a sign of God's grace offered to all people, these gifts of thanksgiving unite us as disciples of Christ who transform the world.

I believe that we are called to be the church in the world, to be the body of Christ, to worship together with vigor, to proclaim the gospel with confidence, to imagine a world without suffering, to strive for God's justice with compassion, to perceive what is right, to pursue it with courage, and to accomplish it by grace, always together, never alone, navigating uncharted territories with open arms and hearts for all of God's children.

Narratives

How do your particular gifts, experiences, and training help you in the ministry setting you believe God is calling you?

This question applies to the following positions: Head of Staff, Solo Pastor: Installed, Associate Pastor (Christian Education), Associate Pastor (Other), Executive Pastor, Chaplain, General Presbyter/Executive Presbyter/Presbytery Leader, Mid-Council Program Staff, Pastor, Yoked Ministry, Stated Clerk (Presbytery), Synod Executive

I believe that God is calling me to partner with a church that is not afraid to imagine what their future might look like and is excited by the possibilities. As a second career pastor, I have over 20 years of experience working in churches and non-profits of many sizes, demographics, and theological perspectives. My extensive experience and collaborative leadership style have equipped me to guide inspiring discussions about the future, to see hope in the darkest places, and to support a congregation as they live into their mission and vision, helping shed light on a path forward. I prioritize relationships by creating a welcoming, inclusive community where everyone is included, especially children and youth. I have a passion for empowering others to use their gifts to contribute to the life of the church through shared leadership. I am an energetic, hopeful, compassionate leader who embraces challenges, trying new things (even if it does not turn out as expected), and creativity.

Explain with theological details what areas of ministry you value most in your calling.

Sharing God's unconditional love lies at the heart of my life and ministry. I did not grow up in the church, but discovered the church as an adult. But before this discovery, there were times in my life when others shared God's love with me in transformative ways. One such occasion was when my father died in a tragic car accident when I was eight years old. The community showed up to take care of my family, many of whom I had never met before. After receiving God's love in unexpected ways throughout my life, my call as a pastor is to share this love with others, especially those who have never experienced God's love before or have been hurt by the church. I am passionate about inviting others to experience the Presbyterian Church, where all are welcome and loved, no matter your story. This is how I discovered the church as an "unchurched" adult. It is now my life's work to continue inviting and inspiring others to join us in our mission to share God's love with the world.

Describe a moment when you have “served using your energy, intelligence, imagination and love”, that led change positively.

I served a church that was passionate about mission. Yet, most of their outreach efforts were at an arm's length via monetary donations. I accidentally discovered a homeless individual living inside of the church. When I shared this with the session, they wanted this person to be arrested. I encouraged them, however, to keep an open mind by reflecting upon what it means to love your neighbor as yourself. We also imagined how Jesus might navigate this with us. Through reflection and prayer, we decided to share God's love in a new way and help support this individual. We learned about why they were struggling and asked how we could help. We secured safe housing and employment for them, while also building a relationship with them. This transformative opportunity inspired the congregation to re-imagine how they do mission. Their outreach is now centered around sharing God's love by building authentic, long-term relationships with their neighbors.

Please describe how have you dealt with failure or disappointment before.

I was ordained a pastor during the pandemic lockdown. It took a year before I finally met my congregation in person. Additionally, on my first day at the church, the beloved church administrator, who was also a longtime member, was diagnosed with terminal cancer and died months later. Some of our members also died from Covid. From the beginning of my ministry with them, there was a high level of isolation, grief, anxiety, and hopelessness in the congregation. It was a disappointing way to begin with them as their new pastor. Yet, instead of giving up hope, we embraced this moment. I helped transform this challenging chapter into an opportunity for the church to process their grief together and begin to heal. We grew closer together as a community and expressed our gratitude for the gift of life. We became the light in the darkness within the community, inspiring others who were also struggling to join our church and find hope once again.

Describe a moment in your recent ministry that you recognize as one of effectiveness and fulfillment.

During a capital campaign, a very active couple struggled with the financial implications. They resigned from their leadership roles and stopped attending worship. Some members dismissed their views because the campaign seemed more important. I was sad that this couple felt hurt by their church family. I wanted to ensure that they felt supported. With encouragement and pastoral care, I discovered that the root cause of their pain was a secret estrangement from their family due to financial issues. The church was their only family. They were grieving the loss of their family during this time of disagreement. I helped the couple feel heard and affirmed, leading to participation in the church again. Their renewed enthusiasm inspired the church, leading to new outreach projects, a successful capital campaign, and an increase in membership. It was fulfilling to help them transform their grief into a closer relationship with their church family.
